interdisciplinary projects, and developing mechanisms for documentation, publication, and dissemination of research outcomes. The representatives deliberated on the need for systematic orientation programmes, skill-based workshops, and knowledge-sharing platforms to strengthen academic quality.

A key highlight of the interaction was the mutual agreement to encourage joint research initiatives, faculty exchange, student research guidance, and collaborative extension activities. The visiting team shared insights into their working model for research motivation, while the host institution presented its ongoing efforts in fostering academic excellence through seminars, capacity-building programmes, and community-oriented activities. Both colleges expressed the intention to develop short-term collaborative modules focusing on innovation, critical thinking, and experiential learning. In her remarks, Dr. Meenu Bhaskar, Principal, Government College Sangrah, appreciated the efforts of both IQAC teams and stated that such academic collaborations are essential for maintaining institutional vibrancy. She highlighted the significance of continual evaluation, policy-level improvements, and the integration of contemporary educational practices to enhance teaching-learning outcomes. She also encouraged faculty members to make optimal use of such partnerships for achieving the long-term academic goals of the institution.

Dr. Vivek Negi, in his concluding remarks, expressed gratitude for the warm welcome and hospitality extended by Government College Sangrah. He emphasized the need to create sustainable channels of academic cooperation and reiterated that collaborative engagements contribute significantly to institutional development in emerging educational landscapes. He further assured that Shri Guru Gobind Singh Ji College is committed to supporting joint initiatives that promote research, innovation, and quality enhancement. The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks presented by Prof. Sandeep Kumar, who acknowledged the valuable contributions of both institutions and highlighted the relevance of inter-IQAC collaboration in strengthening higher education systems. He affirmed that the discussions held during the meeting will pave the way for fruitful academic partnerships and improved student-centric outcomes. Overall, the collaborative IQAC meeting proved to be highly productive and insightful. It not only reinforced the importance of academic cooperation but also laid the foundation for future joint ventures aimed at promoting research excellence, innovation, and institutional growth.

One-Day Training Programme on Digital Literacy & Computer Literacy

Organized by: IQAC & NSS Unit, Government College Sangrah

Collaborating Expert: Shri Kamal Sharma, Entrepreneur, Sangrah

Date:

Venue: Sangrah, District Sirmour (H.P.)

The Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) in collaboration with the NSS Unit of Government College Sangrah successfully conducted a one-day hands-on training programme on Digital Literacy and Computer Literacy for the students of the college on dated 14th June, 2025. The training was organized under the capacity-building and skill-development initiatives of the institution. A total of 09 students participated in this programme, which aimed to impart practical knowledge regarding essential digital operations and workplace-relevant machine handling skills.

The programme was conducted in association with Shri Kamal Sharma, a well-known entrepreneur of Sangrah, who possesses long-standing experience in digital services, printing technology, document processing and small-scale digital business operations. His expertise provided students with real-time exposure to the functioning of digital equipment and the technical aspects involved in printing, photocopying, and digital design support.

The session began with a brief introduction by the NSS Programme Officer, who highlighted the objective of the training—to enhance students' digital competency, improve their workplace readiness, and provide them with practical skills that are essential for modern employment sectors. The importance of computer literacy in a rapidly digitizing world was emphasized, along with the need for students to learn the operational mechanisms of everyday digital machines used in professional settings.

During the training, Shri Kamal Sharma provided detailed demonstrations on the functioning of various digital machines. Students learned how a printing machine operates, including cartridge settings, ink management, paper alignment, print quality adjustment, and error-handling techniques. They were trained in the photocopy (photostat) process, where they gained step-by-step understanding of document placement, resizing, brightness control, paper feeding, and troubleshooting common photocopy issues.

Participants were further introduced to the basics of paper selection, including types of paper, GSM standards, quality differences, and professional suitability for different tasks such as printing, photocopying, and colour outputs. This segment helped students understand the importance of choosing the correct paper in commercial printing processes.

A major highlight of the training was the exposure to flex and banner printing machine mechanisms. Students were given a live demonstration of how banner machines operate, how designs are processed into printable formats, how colour calibration works, and how large-size printed materials are prepared for final output. This experience offered valuable insights into digital printing business operations and opened up awareness for self-employment possibilities.

Students actively participated, asked questions, and practiced certain machine-handling steps under the guidance of the trainer. They expressed that the training was extremely useful, especially for those planning to work in offices, digital service centres, media-related activities or small-scale entrepreneurial ventures. The hands-on nature of the programme helped them gain confidence, practical understanding, and real-world exposure beyond classroom teaching.

The programme concluded with a brief feedback session in which students shared their learning experiences. The IQAC Coordinator thanked Shri Kamal Sharma for his valuable contribution and appreciated the efforts of the NSS Unit for coordinating the event. He further emphasized that IQAC will continue to organize such skill-enhancing programmes to strengthen the employability and digital readiness of the students.

E. One Day Workshop on Financial Literacy

One-Day Workshop on Financial Literacy

Organized by: IQAC and NSS Unit, Government College Sangrah, District Sirmour (H.P.)

Date: 31st December 2024

Key Speaker: Mr. Deep Chand, Director, Him Educare Academy, Raigarh & Sangrah

The Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) in collaboration with the NSS Unit of Government College Sangrah organized a one-day workshop on "Financial Literacy for College Students" on 31st December 2024. The main objective of the workshop was to create awareness among the students about the importance of financial planning, responsible money management, banking processes, investment options, and the significance of financial discipline in a rapidly developing digital economy. The event was a part of the college's continuous efforts to enhance students' life skills, employability skills, and financial awareness under quality enhancement initiatives. The workshop commenced with a brief introductory session conducted by the NSS Programme Officer, who welcomed all dignitaries, resource persons, faculty members, and students. He highlighted the increasing importance of financial knowledge in the life of youth and emphasized that financial literacy is now considered an essential component of holistic education. The Principal of the college addressed the gathering and appreciated the initiative taken by IQAC and NSS for conducting this meaningful academic activity. He also stressed upon the need for students to understand savings, budgeting, digital payments, and safe financial practices, especially during the era of online transactions and technological advancement.

The keynote speaker for the session, Mr. Deep Chand, Director of Him Educare Academy (Raigarh & Sangrah), is a well-known trainer and career guide in the region. His expertise in financial education, entrepreneurship training, and career development added significant value to the workshop. During his address, he explained basic concepts of financial literacy in a very simple and student-friendly manner. He discussed the importance of early savings, the role of budgeting in daily life, and the necessity of financial discipline. He further elaborated on topics such as income sources, expenditure control, responsible borrowing, the concept of emergency funds, and the importance of planning for future financial goals.

In the technical session, Mr. Deep Chand explained different types of bank accounts, interest rates, loan facilities, insurance schemes, government-sponsored financial inclusion programs, and the significance of understanding one's financial rights and responsibilities. He guided students about secure digital payment methods, UPI safety, avoiding online frauds, the importance of strong passwords, and cyber security precautions. The speaker also gave practical examples of common financial mistakes students make and ways to avoid them. The interactive approach of the session encouraged students to raise questions related to banking, investment schemes, and management of personal finances, which were answered thoroughly by the resource person.

A special segment of the workshop focused on investment awareness, including the basics of SIP, mutual funds, recurring deposits, and long-term financial planning. Students were advised about safe financial habits such as maintaining transaction records, checking bank statements regularly, and using verified digital platforms. The session stressed the value of financial independence and how informed financial decisions can contribute to long-term stability and personal growth. The participants expressed that such programs are extremely helpful for young learners who are preparing for higher education, competitive examinations, and future employment opportunities. The workshop concluded with a vote of thanks delivered by the IQAC Coordinator, who acknowledged the contribution of the resource person, faculty members, NSS volunteers, and the organizing committee. He also emphasized that the IQAC will continue to hold similar capacity-building programs to strengthen the academic environment of the institution. Overall, the one-day workshop proved to be a highly enriching experience for the students. It provided essential knowledge about financial behaviour, digital financial systems, and future-oriented financial planning. The event successfully met its objective of empowering students with relevant financial skills and enhancing their understanding of practical financial management.

PATENT AWARENESS SESSION

Organized by IQAC Cell, Government College Sangraha

The Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) of Government College Sangraha organized an informative and student-oriented Patent Awareness Session under its capacity-building initiatives for academic enhancement and innovation promotion on dated 26th Oct. 2024. The session was conducted by Dr. Jagdish Chand, Assistant Professor of Geography, who addressed the students on the growing importance of intellectual property rights (IPR), especially patents, in the present era of research, technology, and entrepreneurship. The programme aimed to equip students with fundamental knowledge of patenting procedures, innovative thinking, and the role of intellectual property in safeguarding originality.

Dr. Jagdish Chand began the session by introducing the concept of Intellectual Property Rights, explaining how ideas, inventions, and creative works can be protected through legal frameworks. He highlighted the relevance of patents in academic research, industry, and entrepreneurial ventures. Students were informed about what qualifies as an invention, the conditions for patentability, and the difference between patents, trademarks, copyrights, and designs. Through simple examples, he clarified how innovations in science, technology, environment, agriculture, and social development often require formal protection to ensure ownership and prevent misuse. A significant portion of the session was dedicated to explaining the process of filing a patent in India, including stages such as idea documentation, prior-art search, drafting the patent application, provisional and complete specifications, and examination procedures. Dr. Chand also emphasized the importance of novelty, utility, and non-obviousness, which are the core criteria for patent approval. Students were guided on how to access online patent databases for research and how young innovators can seek professional assistance or government support through schemes promoting innovation and start-ups.

Dr. Chand discussed the role of patents in enhancing the research culture in higher education, pointing out that many universities and colleges now encourage innovation competitions, incubation cells, and student-led projects that may lead to patentable outcomes. He motivated students from all backgrounds—science, humanities, social sciences, and commerce—to think creatively and identify real-life problems where innovative solutions can be developed. The session highlighted how patents not only provide legal protection but also contribute to national development, economic growth, and technological advancement.

An engaging interaction session followed, where students asked questions related to patent costs, duration of protection, patent infringement, and opportunities for college-level innovation. Dr. Chand answered all queries patiently and encouraged students to explore new avenues of learning. He also shared practical examples from the field of geography, environmental studies, and community-based projects to demonstrate how localized innovations can also qualify for patents. The programme successfully created awareness among students about the significance of IPR and inspired them to participate actively in creative and research-oriented activities. The IQAC Cell acknowledged the valuable contribution of Dr. Jagdish Chand and expressed gratitude for his insightful presentation. Faculty members also appreciated the initiative, stating that such sessions help in aligning college activities with national academic quality standards and NAAC requirements. Overall, the Patent Awareness Session proved to be highly enriching, informative, and motivating for the students of Government College Sangraha. It strengthened their understanding of patents and encouraged them to develop a mindset focused on innovation, originality, and responsible research practices. The IQAC Cell expressed its commitment to organizing more such capacity-building programmes in the future to enhance the academic environment of the institution.

Subject: Permission to Send Students for Banking Internship at SAI Cooperative Society, Sangrah Branch

Ma'am,

With due respect, it is submitted that the NSS Unit of our college proposes to send selected students for a two-month practical internship in the field of banking and financial operations at SAI Cooperative Society, Sangrah Branch. The internship is planned for three days a week, i.e., Monday, Tuesday and Saturday (2:00 pm to 04:00 pm) during summer vacation, so that the academic schedule of students remains unaffected. This internship aims to provide hands-on experience to students in basic banking procedures such as account handling, documentation, customer service, digital transactions, deposit-withdrawal processes, record management, and financial literacy practices.

The internship is highly beneficial for students as it will enhance their employability skills, practical knowledge and understanding of financial institutions. It will also help them learn important aspects like digital banking safety, cash-handling discipline, professional etiquette, teamwork, and real-life financial problem-solving. Such exposure is extremely valuable for students as banking is one of the most promising career sectors for youth, and this experience will help them build confidence and competence in future.

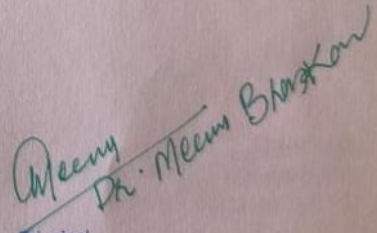

Therefore, it is kindly requested that permission may please be granted to allow interested students to undergo this internship at SAI Cooperative Society, Sangrah Branch for a period of two months as per the proposed schedule. The NSS Unit will ensure the discipline, punctuality, and regular monitoring of all participating students.

I shall be highly obliged for your kind approval.

Thanking you,
Yours sincerely,

- On a designated day, Government College Sangrah's NSS unit conducted its weekly mentor session, focusing on the crucial topic of "Personality Development and NSS." The session aimed to equip the volunteers with essential skills and insights to enhance their personal growth and effectively contribute to the NSS mission. Shri Vinod Kumar, Assistant Professor of Music Instruments, served as the key speaker, bringing a unique perspective to the topic.

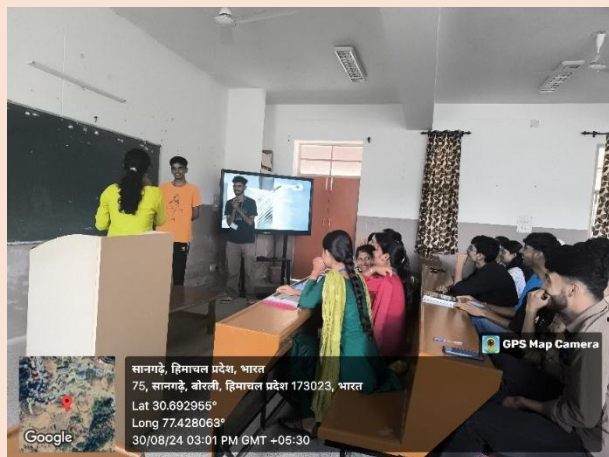

Shri Vinod Kumar commenced the session by highlighting the symbiotic relationship between personality development and active participation in NSS activities. He emphasized that NSS provides a platform for volunteers to cultivate essential life skills such as leadership, communication, teamwork, and problem-solving, all of which are fundamental components of a well-rounded personality. He stressed that by engaging in community service, volunteers not only contribute to societal well-being but also undergo a transformative personal journey.

The speaker delved into various aspects of personality development, including self-awareness, confidence building, and effective communication. He provided practical tips and strategies for volunteers to enhance these qualities, encouraging them to step out of their comfort zones and embrace new challenges. He also emphasized the importance of ethical conduct and empathy in both personal and professional life.

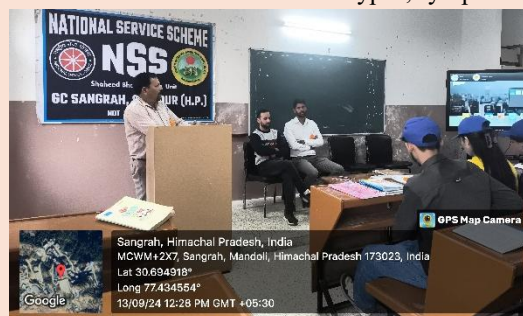

Furthermore, Shri Vinod Kumar drew parallels between the discipline and dedication required in music and the commitment expected from NSS volunteers. He illustrated how the pursuit of excellence in any field can contribute to overall personality development. The session concluded with an interactive segment where volunteers engaged in discussions and asked questions, further solidifying their understanding of the topic. The session was very successful, and provided important information to the attending NSS volunteers. 32 NSS volunteers participated in this session.

On September 13, 2024, a significant awareness program was organized at Government College Sangrah under the Eye Donation Fortnight, in which 56 NSS volunteers actively participated. The keynote speaker of the program, Mr. Chaman Soni Ji, Block Health Educator Sangrah, provided detailed information on the topic "Eye Donation, Various Eye Diseases and Their Treatments." He highlighted the importance of eye donation, explaining how this act can bring light to the lives of visually impaired people. Mr. Soni Ji also elaborated on the types, symptoms, and treatments of various eye diseases such as cataracts, glaucoma, and retinal problems. He discussed eye problems caused by current lifestyles and diets and emphasized the importance of proper nutrition and regular exercise to avoid these problems. He also explained how necessary it is to have regular eye check-ups. Mr.

Soni Ji explained the eye donation process in simple and clear terms, enabling the volunteers to understand the subject in depth. He also provided information about the registration process for eye donation and the myths and facts related to eye donation. The volunteers enthusiastically asked questions and cleared their doubts. This program made the volunteers aware of eye health and helped them understand the importance of eye donation. This program played a significant role in raising awareness about eye donation and promoting eye donation in society.

1. Certificate Course for Students:

Government College SangraH, through its Shaheed Bhagat Singh NSS Unit, conducted an engaging and educational interactive session featuring Shri Parvinder Singh, a key representative of the Pratham Educational Foundation. The session was organized under a special initiative titled "Camaal Ka Camp", which is part of a month-long skill-based internship programme for NSS volunteers. The core objective of this internship is to foster community-based learning by involving college students in teaching village children aged between 4 and 13 years. A total of 45 enthusiastic NSS volunteers were selected and assigned the task of teaching foundational subjects such as Mathematics and literacy in their respective villages. Through this internship, not only do rural children benefit from quality basic education, but college students also gain valuable exposure to teaching methodologies, classroom engagement techniques, and adaptive teaching strategies. It serves as a dual-learning platform—village children learn essential academic skills, while college students acquire practical experience in education delivery at the grassroots level. The interactive session aimed to equip the volunteers with effective teaching tools, child-friendly approaches, and motivational strategies to ensure meaningful and sustainable knowledge transfer. The initiative was organized by Mr. Sandeep Kumar, who played a pivotal role in mentoring the volunteers and coordinating the event.

One-Day Training Programme on Digital Literacy & Computer Literacy

Organized by: IQAC & NSS Unit, Government College Sangrah

Date:

The Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) in collaboration with the NSS Unit of Government College Sangrah successfully conducted a one-day hands-on training programme on Digital Literacy and Computer Literacy for the students of the college on dated 14th June, 2025. The training was organized under the capacity-building and skill-development initiatives of the institution. A total of 09 students participated in this programme, which aimed to impart practical knowledge regarding essential digital operations and workplace-relevant machine handling skills.

The programme was conducted in association with Shri Kamal Sharma, a well-known entrepreneur of Sangrah, who possesses long-standing experience in digital services, printing technology, document processing and small-scale digital business operations. His expertise provided students with real-time exposure to the functioning of digital equipment and the technical aspects involved in printing, photocopying, and digital design support.

The session began with a brief introduction by the NSS Programme Officer, who highlighted the objective of the training—to enhance students' digital competency, improve their workplace readiness, and provide them with practical skills that are essential for modern employment sectors. The importance of computer literacy in a rapidly digitizing world was emphasized, along with the need for students to learn the operational mechanisms of everyday digital machines used in professional settings.

During the training, Shri Kamal Sharma provided detailed demonstrations on the functioning of various digital machines. Students learned how a printing machine operates, including cartridge settings, ink management, paper alignment, print quality adjustment, and error-handling techniques. They were trained in the photocopy (photostat) process, where they gained step-by-step understanding of document placement, resizing, brightness control, paper feeding, and troubleshooting common photocopy issues.

Participants were further introduced to the basics of paper selection, including types of paper, GSM standards, quality differences, and professional suitability for different tasks such as printing, photocopying, and colour outputs. This segment helped students understand the importance of choosing the correct paper in commercial printing processes.

A major highlight of the training was the exposure to flex and banner printing machine mechanisms. Students were given a live demonstration of how banner machines operate, how designs are processed into printable formats, how colour calibration works, and how large-size printed materials are prepared for final output. This experience offered valuable insights into digital printing business operations and opened up awareness for self-employment possibilities.

Students actively participated, asked questions, and practiced certain machine-handling steps under the guidance of the trainer. They expressed that the training was extremely useful, especially for those planning to work in offices, digital service centres, media-related activities or small-scale entrepreneurial ventures. The hands-on nature of the programme helped them gain confidence, practical understanding, and real-world exposure beyond classroom teaching.

The programme concluded with a brief feedback session in which students shared their learning experiences. The IQAC Coordinator thanked Shri Kamal Sharma for his valuable contribution and appreciated the efforts of the NSS Unit for coordinating the event. He further emphasized that IQAC will continue to organize such skill-enhancing programmes to strengthen the employability and digital readiness of the students.

3. Development of Course Contents for MOOCs

The faculty at Government College Sangrah actively engage in the development of course contents for Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs) to enhance access to quality education. Course development follows a structured process aligned with national frameworks such as SWAYAM and e-PG Pathshala. The content is curated in accordance with UGC guidelines, ensuring relevance, academic rigor, and alignment with the Choice Based Credit System (CBCS). Faculty members contribute by designing video lectures, writing detailed modules, preparing reading materials, and creating quizzes and assignments for continuous assessment. Emphasis is placed on inclusive pedagogy, use of ICT tools, and learner-centric approaches. Mr. Sandeep Kumar, a faculty member in the History Department, is also actively participating in this initiative. He is currently pursuing a certified course titled “Iconography of Major Hindu Deities” and is a registered member of the SWAYAM Centre. His involvement reflects the institution’s commitment to continuous professional development and digital learning integration.

Play Presented by NSS Volunteers on NSS Day (24th September 2024)

On 24th September 2024, Government College Sangraha, District Sirmour, celebrated NSS Day with great enthusiasm and participation from students and faculty. Among the highlights of the program was a humorous and engaging play presented by the NSS volunteers. The play, designed in a light-hearted and entertaining manner, not only entertained the audience but also served as an effective platform for students to express their creativity, imagination, and hidden talents. The purpose of staging this play was twofold. Firstly, it aimed at bringing out the innate talent of the students, many of whom had limited opportunities to perform on stage. Secondly, it sought to enhance the soft skills of the participants. Through acting, dialogue delivery, teamwork, and coordination, the volunteers demonstrated confidence, communication abilities, and leadership qualities. Their performance reflected how NSS activities go beyond social service and contribute significantly to the personality development of youth. The play, filled with humor and satire, evoked laughter and joy among the audience, while simultaneously spreading a message of togetherness and positivity. It offered a refreshing break from routine and highlighted how performing arts can be used as an effective medium to connect with people. The faculty members present on the occasion appreciated the volunteers for their dedication and creativity. The play successfully achieved its objective of bringing hidden talent to the forefront and strengthening the bond of teamwork among students.

performed by Ankita, B.A. IIIrd Year, along with her fellow participants, who together created an unforgettable theatrical experience. Their powerful acting, emotional expressions, and authentic portrayal of the pain and trauma of the victim moved the audience deeply. The performance was so intense and realistic that tears welled up in the eyes of many who witnessed it. The play succeeded in not only highlighting a serious social issue but also awakening empathy, awareness, and a sense of responsibility among the viewers. This event also brought to the forefront the soft skills and hidden talents of the NSS volunteers. Through teamwork, dialogue delivery, stage presence, and coordination, the students demonstrated their abilities in communication, leadership, and creative expression. The play was not only an artistic performance but also an exercise in personality development and confidence-building. Faculty members and students appreciated the courage of the participants for choosing such a sensitive subject and performing it with dignity and sincerity. The event truly reflected the essence of NSS, which aims at the overall development of students while connecting them with social concerns. The play left a lasting impact on everyone present, proving that art and theatre can be powerful tools for social change, awareness, and the holistic growth of young volunteers.
